LIBRARY, RED-CROSS-STREET, Dec. 22, 1789.

AT a numerous and reſpectable Meeting of the General Body of the PROTESTANT DISSENTING MINISTERS in and about the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, convened for the Purpoſe of expreſſing our Concurrence with our Brethren in the Country, in their Reſolutions on the Subjects of the CORPORATION and TEST ACTS.

THE REV. SAMUEL PALMER IN THE CHAIR.

RESOLVED I. Nem. Con. THAT Proteſtant Diſſenters are entitled, equally with their fellow Subjects, to the complete Poſſeſſion of civil and religious Liberty.

RESOLVED II. Nem. Con. THAT they have been uniformly diſtinguiſhed by a zealous Attachment to the Principles of our happy Conſtitution, as defined at the Revolution; and by a ſteady and unſhaken Loyalty to the Houſe of Brunſwick, at the moſt dangerous and critical Periods.

RESOLVED III. Nem. Con. THAT the Excluſion of them, by the CORPORATION and TEST ACTS, from Offices of Truſt and Honour, in which they might prove of Benefit to the State, or enjoy the Immunities of faithful Citizens, is diſgraceful to the Juſtice of the Nation, the Generoſity of Britons, and the liberal Spirit of the Times.

RESOLVED IV. Nem. Con. THAT thoſe Acts are not only oppreſſive in their civil Tendency, but by enforcing the Proſtitution of a ſolemn religious Ordinance, expoſe our Chriſtian Faith to the Deriſion of the Profligate, and the Objections of Unbelievers.

RESOLVED V. Nem. Con. THAT we, therefore, view with Pleaſure the temperate and manly Efforts of our Brethren in different Parts of the Kingdom, to obtain the Repeal of thoſe diſhonourable and pernicious Statutes; and are ready, vigorouſly to concur with them, in every wiſe and practical Meaſure for bringing about ſo deſirable an End.

RESOLVED VI. with one diſſentient Voice, THAT we cannot but add, that we hope the Time is near at Hand, when all penal Laws for the Direction of Men's Conſciences ſhall be repealed.

RESOLVED VII. Nem. Con. THAT theſe Reſolutions be ſigned by the Chairman, and that Copies of them be ſent for Inſertion to two of the Daily, and to two of the Evening Papers.

RESOLVED VIII. Nem. Con. THAT the Thanks of this Body be given to the Chairman, for his candid and proper Behaviour on the preſent Occaſion.

SAMUEL PALMER, Chairman.
